NOT QUITE HARMONIOUS.
A THREE-CORNERED WAR.
VETERANS AND FARMERS.
GARIBALDI'S WIFE.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

A BEAUTIFUL thing is harmony, but we haven't got it in our national government. President Hoover appeared before the Senate yesterday to persuade gentlemen on the floor to balance the nation's budget. In moderate, carefully guarded terms, he suggested a sales tax which would produce the necessary income.

Shortly thereafter the Senate finance committee defeated that tax by a vote of 12 to 8.

GERMANY, after maintaining a republic since the war will probably try a dictator, Mr. Hitler, young Nazi leader, "The German Mussolini."

Paris, much interested in the possibilities, well may be. Dictators often agree. Mussolini gave a fine reception to the Turkish representative of Kemal Pasha.

Mussolini and Hitler might unite to concentrate attention on France.

The Germans would like to recover billions and territory given to France. Mussolini wants to make the Mediterranean "an Italian lake," and establish Italy as leader among Latin races.

A THREE-CORNERED war, Germany and Italy against France, would probably remain strictly three-cornered. England would not go in. Poland and other countries generously financed by France since 1918 might be elsewhere busy.

It is an unpleasant thought for France, but that gigantic pile of gold in Paris might melt rapidly under such conditions. No wonder the French keep up their fighting air fleet and submarines, always building and improving.

FIVE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-FIVE Pacific coast veterans of the World war are at Washington sleeping on straw sacks, living on food supplied by two rolling kitchens from the war college, and complaining of a "thin watery cabbage soup, and diluted milk." They want work even at $1.00 a day.

They will stay there until the bonus is paid, "if they have to stay until 1945."

FARMERS would be interested in a photograph of the veterans, camping in Washington, near the department of agriculture, one blowing a bugle, announcing that food is ready. Congress, police and government treat them respectively. The veterans, organized and well organized, say what they want, and somebody listens. Farmers not organized, say what they want, and nobody listens.

GARIBALDI, who establishes the Italian nation, had a wife, Anita, whom he called "the most perfect human creature known to mankind." She went everywhere with him even onto the battlefield, and died in his arms, after one of his most disastrous defeats.

Italy has erected a fine monument to Garibaldi on Rome's Janiculum hill, and beside his monument another is erected to his wife. Tomorrow her body, brought from Genoa, will be placed beneath

Garbo's Leaving—Gets Traveling Bag Studio, Convinced She Means It, Presents Gift; Contract Ends Today

Greta Garbo

(By Associated Press)
HOLLYWOOD, CALIF., June 1.—The motion picture studio where Greta Garbo has been employed for the past several years apparently has concluded the film star really meant business when she said "I tank I go back to Sweden." The studio has presented her with a traveling bag.

Miss Garbo's contract officially ended today, although she made her last appearance before the camera with the completion of the picture "As You Desire Me."

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios had sought to have the Swedish star sign a renewal of her contract. She announced she preferred farm life in her home land to Hollywood.

Her manager announced last Sunday the actress would leave Hollywood within 10 days for Sweden for an "indefinite stay."

SUMMER SCHOOL TERM TO BEGIN MONDAY, JUNE 6

Classes to Be Conducted At High School and Fourth Street

Salem's summer school program will get under way Monday in the Fourth Street and high school buildings, according to announcement today by Supt. Earl S. Kerr.

No Conditional Promotions

In former years, "conditional promotions" were made contingent on work during the summer. However, school authorities did not feel, it was pointed out, with economic conditions as they are, that parents should be compelled to stand extra expense to accomplish the promotion of their children where the students had difficulty in various subjects, unless they wished to do so.

Consequently, the schools are notifying parents of those children who will be retained in present grades, and if the parents desire to have their children tutored, they may do so at the cost of $2 weekly per subject for a term of six weeks. For high school the tuition is to be $2.50 on the same basis, it is announced.

Register June 6

Misses Natalie Sharpnack and Effie Cameron will have charge of the grade students and Principal W. J. Springer the high school. High school students may register at Mr. Springer's office, and grade students at the Fourth street building, June 6.

The board points out that "it should be understood that there is no disposition whatever on the part of the public schools to induce parents to spend extra money to have children tutored even though failure of promotion is the result."

Will Sell Bonds To Aid Alliance Needy

ALLIANCE, June 1.—Decision to sell two bond issues immediately to furnish labor for men dependent upon the city and to continue to issue grocery orders for at least ten days in anticipation of the receipt of more money, was reached at an informal meeting of city council with Mayor C. S. Westover Tuesday.

The mayor called the councilmen together, after he received notice from City Auditor Howard F. Bohecker that because of the threatened depletion of funds no more relief vouchers would be honored. Orders up to Saturday night would be honored, but none issued after the close of that day's business, the auditor informed the mayor by letter.

Bohecker's communication stated that "I am compelled to notify you that we are obliged to stop payment of all relief vouchers at the close of today's business." The letter was delivered late Saturday.

Betson, a former candidate for mayor; his nephew, Cecil Manning; Claud Evans, an ex-convict, and Arlo Stoops; 15 years imprisonment for Stoops' brother, Raymond; seven years for Dwight Bartlett, and five years each for Atty. ## SENATE ENACTS MEASURE; HOUSE APPROVAL NEXT

Two Branches Confer For Final Agreement On Legislation

BILL PROVIDES FOR NEW FUNDS

Designed to Put Government On Pay-As-You Go Basis

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 1.—Congress sped to conclusion of its greatest peacetime task today — that of balancing off a gaping treasury deficit to preserve the American dollar from foreign attacks pictured by President Hoover.

The billion dollar revenue bill, archstone of the bridge over the treasury gap, was returned to the house again and immediately directed to a conference between the two branches to get final agreement on the legislation.

Acts Unanimously

The house acted unanimously, not instructing its conferees to stand by this or that provision of the original house bill. This will expedite action by the conference.

Speaker Garner named Representative Collier, of Mississippi; Crisp of Georgia; Rainey of Illinois, Democrats; and Hawley of Oregon and Treadway of Massachusetts, Republicans, as conferees.

The senate conferees appointed in the early hours of today just after the senate passed the bill are Senators Smoot, Watson and Reed, Republicans and Harrison and King, Democrats. Meetings will get under way without delay.

The gigantic tax raising measure, intended to provide $1,155,000,000 in new funds, for the government next year will do the job of putting the nation on a pay-as-you-go basis again, assert the spokesmen for the administration.

Goal Quickly Reached

The goal fixed yesterday by the President in his dramatic personal appearance before the senate was quickly reached, in additions of new funds by the weary senate last night.

Even as the senate passed the bill, the appropriations committee reported to the chamber the other twin of the budget balancing act — the $238,000,000 national economy measure.

It gets the right of way beginning late today in the senate.

Informal assurances have been given by the house leadership that the new budget balancing goal fixed yesterday by the President and Secretary Mills will be kept in mind in forming the final draft of the revenue measure in conference.

The headlong drive on Capital Hill which sent more than $230,000,000 new revenue into the tax bill yesterday and culminated in passage later has caused new speculation in the possibilities of an adjournment of congress by June 11 — the eve of the opening of the national political conventions.

"MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

Copyright, 1931, by Goytch-Friede Inc., distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Following the receipt of a death threat, Lola Carewe, known as "The Night Club Lady," is mysteriously slain in her penthouse apartment at 3 a. m. New Year's. Dr. Hugh Baldwin reports death due to heart failure. The only clue to the murderer is a medical laboratory specimen box found outside Lola's window. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt attaches importance to the young man whose photograph is found in Lola's room, and whose identity Lola had refused to reveal beyond his first name, "Basil." At the mention of "Basil," Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, becomes hysterical. It is known that Lola quarreled with Guy Everett and Vincent Rowland, a lawyer, over investments. Eunice, the maid, confesses she was employed by Everett to report the goings on in the apartment. The mystery deepens with the finding of the body of Christine Quires, Lola's guest. Christine had been killed before Lola and her body hidden until an opportune moment arrived for the murdered to place it, soaking wet, in Lola's room. The findings are similar to those in Lola's case except that Christine's neck was bruised over death. Everett, Christine's last escort, claims he left her at the apartment elevator at midnight New Year's Eve, and then went for a ride on the Motor Parkway, alone, arriving home after 3 a. m. Mrs. Carewe informs Colt that Christine lived with a brother, Edward, in Rochester.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

"Had Christine any private income?"

"Oh, yes, she was rather wealthy in her own right—that is to say, I believe she will be—I mean she would have been in two more months."

"She was coming into an inheritance?"

"Yes—of about a million dollars, I believe. There was something about her father having left her money of which she was to come in full possession when she was twenty-three years old."

Now Colt's line of questions swerved sharply.

"Do you know of any love affairs?"

"None."

"She had admirers—"

"Yes, But I think she took none of them seriously—that is what she always told me."

"Was this because of a disappointment in love?"

"I know nothing about that. She did not confide in me."

"Now, Mrs. Carewe," resumed Colt, "I want to ask you if you know of any person who would have any reason to wish for the death of Lola or of Christine—or who would benefit from their deaths in any way?"

"Absolutely none," declared old Mrs. Carewe.

"Who will get Lola's inheritance now?"

The mother shook her head unhappily and supposed she would, but she did not know. And she knew nothing of Christine's affairs.

"Did you ever know Christine to quarrel with anyone?"

The old woman gave Colt a quick, uncertain glance; then her eyelids covered a tell-tale expression and her fingers twitched at her handkerchief.

"No—not really," she sighed at last.

"Are you sure?"

"Yes."

"As a matter of fact, didn't she quarrel with you only this afternoon?"

The old lady's eyes opened brightly and she nodded her head vigorously.

"Oh—that! I suppose Eunice heard. Well—we did have a tiff. But it amounted to nothing. Christine thought Lola was investing some money in a wrong way. But I didn't know anything about it. Come to think of it, Christine made a remark that seems queer—now!"

"Would her not to worry me about her money; she would have to see Lola about it. And she said something about she would—if Lola lived that long."

"Was that all?"

"Yes. She got to crying and went in her room and shut the door. After a while she came out and apologized and we kissed and made it up."

"Know of any other quarrels that might lead us anywhere?"

"Not a quarrel—I know something, but well—it is so trifling—"

"What is it?" insisted Dougherty.

"You must tell us everything."

"All right—it is true that Christine took a violent dislike to our butler. But Chung is a harmless person—he has been with us for years."

"Why did Christine dislike your Chinaman?"

"He frightened her. She thought he was—impertinent in the way he watched her."

"She was afraid of him?"

"Yes, frankly—she was. But that was foolishness."

Colt brushed aside her comments.

"Now there remains what to me seems a difficult point," resumed Colt. "Lola was found wearing a flannel bath-robe. Do you know if it was hers?"

"Yes—she always liked it."

"Did she wear it often?"

"Whenever she felt chilly."

Colt nodded thoughtfully, but he asked no more questions. Promising Mrs. Carewe that she would be under constant guard, he bade her a comforting goodnight. When he reached the living-room, Colt and Doctor Multooler conferred in low tones. Then the Medical Examiner went the way of his two cadavers—out of the pent-house and down to the Morgue.

"Chief," said Inspector Flynn, from the open door of the guest-room where Lola had died. "Adams and Thompson are here—with their apparatus."

With some amusement, I observed District Attorney Dougherty's glare at this newest development—two young detectives, from Headquarters, each armed with, of all things in the world, a vacuum cleaner. They were here at Thatcher Colt's special request—operators of machines of vast importance to the police, although the public has little suspicion of how valuable such an instrument can be in solving a murder.

"Get everything ready!" ordered Colt crisply. "I am convinced that you boys can help us find what we need to get at the bottom of this baffling business."

Flushed at Colt's compliment, the two detectives began to make ready their machines. Meanwhile Colt went to the telephone and asked for long distance. In an incredibly short while, he was speaking to Captain Wagner, head of the Rochester Detective Department.

"Hello, Captain. I need your help in a hurry. I want to find a man named Edward Quires. He lives on Onondaga Avenue—"

At the other end of the wire, Captain Wagner had already reached for the telephone book, and as Colt finished, he had his finger on the listing.

"Right, Mr. Colt. I have the address before me."

"Will you send a man right out there? Ask Quires and his wife, if she's there, to go to Headquarters with you. Then to call this number from your office—Plaza 3-73635—that's right, and then will you keep an eye on Quires while I break a piece of news to him over the phone. See how he acts. Thanks, Captain!"

In preparing this watch-trap over Christine's brother in Rochester, Colt was simply following the old department maxim of taking nothing for granted and everything for possible. He knew that Christine Quires had been unhappy in her brother's home. More, he knew that

With some amusement, I observed District Attorney Dougherty's glare at this newest development.

It's as though the tobaccos were "welded" together...

"CROSS-BLENDING" means much more than just mixing tobaccos together.

It "welds" together different kinds of the several varieties of tobacco... many types of Bright tobacco, a great many types of Burley tobacco and numerous grades of Turkish tobacco.

THIS "WELDING" TOGETHER—or Cross-Blending—permits every kind of tobacco used in the Chesterfield blend to partake of the best qualities of every other type. Each tobacco is thus made to yield its finest flavors.

CROSS-BLENDING takes all these pleasing flavors and aromas and combines them into one—the Chesterfield taste. And we think you will agree that it is a far better taste... worth all the extra care that Chesterfield takes to get it.

EVERYTHING that money can buy and that science knows about is done to make CHESTERFIELD milder and taste better.

UMPIRE BAITING

Millions have longed to kick an umpire, but decency and the necessity of keeping organized baseball free from rowdiness have thwarted their unworthy desire.

It may seem to angry members of the crowd that the players couldn't possibly be half so mad as they usually are at the umpire. However, it's the players who actually are engaging in the competition, and whose reputations and salaries may be affected directly by a doubtful decision. If they seem to remain calm it's because they understand the necessity for control.

Members of the Chicago White Sox who attacked Umpire Moriarty after Sunday's double-header with the Cleveland Indians Sunday allowed themselves to get too angry. Unfortunately, both for them and their team, they will have to pay the penalty for their excess. That's baseball.

They may claim that their victim, an aggressive individual with a fighting record, asked for trouble and got it. They may plead the inability of self-respecting men to withstand insults and unfairness indefinitely. They may plead a great many things, but without altering the fact that hot heads were the cause of the trouble.

There is a chain of authority maintained. Players deal through their managers; umpires are responsible to no one but league officials. Hats and spiked shoes on an umpire's head when he is stretched out helpless would not be legitimate convincers, even if players were allowed to argue with umpires about things that are entirely the umpire's business. Umpire Moriarty's attackers are guilty of worse than losing their tempers.

It's hard, but without it organized baseball would last just as long as would be required for the players and fans to discover that they could make the decisions. Umpire baiting may be fine sport, but it's a good deal like government baiting. If the baiters ever could get their way they would pull the house of cards down around their ears. Hence the necessity of establishing and maintaining authority at any cost.

LOSS OF CONFIDENCE

Germany's grand old man, Paul von Hindenburg, has made a bold stroke to create once more the powerful unification of interests and purpose that lifted his people to great heights and which, destroyed, dropped them into a maelstrom of disorder from which they still are seeking an escape.

In his capacity as president and with a recent vote of confidence from the German states, he has asked for and received the resignation of the two-year-old cabinet headed by Dr. Heinrich Brüning. The world is struck breathless at this daring action. Dr. Brüning and his aides have come to be considered indispensable to the German government under its aged president.

Whatever happens during the readjustment, there will be faith in the president's motives. Paul von Hindenburg, called many times to serve Germany, has demonstrated past doubt; that he will be true to the trust reposed in him by the people. If he appears to be conceding ground to Adolf Hitler in the present instance, and he is, it will be because he is convinced that the republic will better be served.

Hitler's strength cannot be disregarded. He is the spokesman for large numbers of German people. Dr. Brüning has chosen to meet the opposition of this vociferous critic of the government by exercising a policy of suppression. When he asked President von Hindenburg for an expression of confidence in his domestic and foreign policies before attending the Lausanne conference on debts and reparations this month, he received, instead, an order to dissolve his cabinet.

A tremendously important step in current German history has been taken; how important cannot be stated exactly until its effects have been made known. France will be frightened; the United States will be frightened; no nation will be unconcerned with a political development that may place an entirely new face on the German situation. A government that was trusted by Germany's neighbors will be replaced with a government whose policies will be uncertain. Hitler, who denies that his National Socialist party will have anything to do with a stop-gap cabinet, will wait confidently for the people to place him in power by a general election after the present reichstag has been dissolved. He will emerge from reorganization a more powerful figure. That much is certain.

And Germany? An old man whose wise head and steady hand haven't failed his countrymen yet is looking out for Germany. Paul von Hindenburg has a plan to reunite the elements of his potentially powerful nation. May it be a good one—good enough to halt the avalanche of confidence he has started by unexpectedly removing the iron chancellor who has stood at his shoulder for the last two years.

What Others Say

CANADA'S RADIO REVOLT

As a result of growing dissatisfaction in Canada because of the amount of advertising permitted in connection with radio broadcasts, a house of commons in Ottawa to special committee was appointed by look into the matter.

After weeks of investigation this committee recommends the establishment of a national broadcasting system, with a string of 50,000-watt stations from the Maritimes to British Columbia and a number of smaller subsidiary stations. The system would be operated by a commission of three. Stations of 1,000 watts or under, which were not required by the national system, would be allowed to remain under private ownership, although they would be regulated by the commission as to programs and advertising. The committee proposes that advertising be limited to 5 per cent of the program period.

Such is Canada's reaction to the increasing nuisance of direct sales talks and ballyhoo advertising on the air, as distinguished from brief and legitimate sponsorship announcements. The latter would be adequately accompanied by the allocation to them of 5 per cent of program time.

Are the Canadians foreshadowing what eventually will be brought about in the United States if broadcasters do not awaken to the fact that the radio public, which wants education and entertainment, will not forever put up with the crowding out of those features by advertising ballyhoo? The broadcasters have been warned time and again by men in their own line of business that they are riding to a fall. "The public be damned" was not good policy for the railroads two generations ago and it is not good policy for broadcasting stations today. Canada's revolt against the prostitution of a great cultural institution to profits alone, should give strength to the movement in this country to rescue radio from the menace of commercialism and save it for the people—Detroit Free Press.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, June 2

A lively and eventful day is forecast from the predominant lunar positions, with stirring about, sudden change and a disposition to jump into situations somewhat risky, through rash, impulsive and high-pressure moves. The energies and faculties will be under high stimulus, but inclining to headstrong ways and ill-guarded speech, which may provoke danger and in-harmony, defeating the desired ends. Shun snap decisions, extravagance and speculative enterprises. Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a lively and stirring year, with energies and faculties under high pressure. There may be change, removal or travel.

A child born on this day should be energetic, enterprising, talented and ambitious, but may defeat itself by impetuosity, turbulence and willfulness unless early disciplined.

The Confident Interne

NEW YORK, June 1—Wall Street, once the liveliest spot in daylight hours, has become depressingly drab. Activity that geysered into the furious fume of its manhole jets has vanished. Tickers tick hopelessly but board rooms are deserted. The last of the loyalists have deserted.

Restaurants, catering to noon-day trade, are ghostly with empty white table tops. Thousands who, since the crash, went to the financial district merely as a gesture until things righted, have finally abandoned daily trips. Those who have not jumped from windows are in seclusion.

For months Wall Street expected the turn upward that did not come. Today hope has so waned that many in a position to know say it will be four years before Wall Street comes back. Some 20,000 men and women, who thought themselves secure, are without jobs in the area.

Many brokerage houses have weathered the cyclone but are manned by scant handfuls. Where there were a dozen or more telephone operators, there is but one. Those long distance connections with San Francisco, Boston and Chicago by the mere lift of a receiver are discontinued.

An important broker tells me on a day recently his sales for the day were a little more than $50. On a similar day three years ago sales totaled $423,000. As goes Wall Street, so goes its army of small tradesmen whose livelihood depends on the street's prosperity.

So true is this that the vacancies among small shops is nearly 50 per cent. The most pessimistic in Wall Street believe the worst is over but dread the future. "Burnt children fear the fire!" Wall Street's next prosperity depends on new and trusting crops of investors. Lambs to be shorn!

So many tortuous twists of streets down town would have delighted Dickens—charming cul de sacs entirely lost in the Manhattan shuffle, footpaths back to the long ago. They have the almost forgotten flavor of less time-clocked days when there was leisure in the world, when one paid a visit to a poem or could stay a weekend in a tale. On Beaver street I saw a wooden Indian cigar sign and on Bridge, a rusted foot-scraper, and on another sequestered by-path an old-fashioned cellar door with a ring-lift of iron. Dead worlds sifting through new!

Among the foibles of New York's rue de la Paix—Fifty Seventh street this morning was a gentleman, who if not Perry Joyce's ex-husband, the blonde Count Morner, was his double, wearing a pale green shirt with an autumnal brown tie. And what is more, the cuffs were of the same autumnal brown. So what!

Park Row has until lately had an especial tug for newspaper men. But it is mottled now like the Bowery's hazy landscape. All the print shops have scattered. Ham and Doan's is a memory. Buildings are shabby. Many good old Doc Perry's remains, still bright with customary drugstore glitter but for many somehow stained with the ineradicable bitterness of neglect.

When Park Row was my top-o'-th'-world, Frank O'Malley and Ed

Hill were the best known reporters in town, writing unsigned pieces for the morning Sun. The terrible World twins—Joe Jeff O'Neill and Don Carke—were giving Herbert Bayard Swaps a daily headache. Irvin Cobb was authoring a daily humorous column for the Evening World. Goldberg's "Like and Mike" convulsed the town. Bennett was inviting managing editors by cable to Paris to enjoy the sadistic pleasure of firing them. It was a pre-emptory generation of square-shooting newspapermen, sometimes hard-drinking and brusque among themselves but always decent, a gallant contribution to the Fourth Estate.

Reuben, de luxe delicatessen, is said to get along with less sleep than anyone in the night life hooped-dee-do. His busiest hours are from 1 to 6 a. m. He generally retires around 10 a. m., sleeps two hours and sleeps another two hours between the dinner hour and midnight and has been following this program for years. Like Napoleon, he can sneak off for a five-minute nap at will.

On a block in East 62nd street this afternoon a platinum blonde with a come-hither look led a young fox on a beaded leash. I circled skittishly. I have a sharp memory of boyhood days on a Missouri farm when I approached a fox dangling in a trap, which wasn't pass-t! a fox any more than anything.

How To Get Rid of Acne

Many inquiries have come to me from young readers suffering from acne, and to answer them it is necessary to go somewhat into detail.

Acne is the most prevalent of all skin diseases, and though it causes no pain, it causes mental suffering and embarrassment to those afflicted. Acne is an inflammatory disease of the glands of the skin. It is most frequently found on the face, but may involve the shoulders and the back. The skin is greasy and contains many blackheads and pimples. These pimples frequently become infected, dry up and leave behind an ugly crust and possibly a permanent scar.

The exact cause of acne is still unknown. A germ called "bacillus acne" has been found in many cases. Another germ called "staphylococcus aureus" is commonly found in cases where pustules are present. The disease usually occurs at the age of puberty, when the sweat glands of the skin are extremely susceptible to infection. Another factor which must not be overlooked is carelessness about foods. Overeating of rich foods, candies, pastries and desserts is a common weakness at this age.

In the treatment of acne, the hygienic care of the skin is important. Absolute cleanliness is the first requisite. It is necessary to get rid of blackheads and cleanse and disinfect the skin as thoroughly as possible and this must be attended to before relief can be obtained. Bathe the face in hot water until the skin becomes red, then with great gentleness pinch out the blackheads, or remove them with an extractor. After this the face should be bathed again with a pint of hot water to which one teaspoon of a compound solution of cresol has been added.

An astringent prescribed by a physician should be applied to the skin at night and washed off in the morning with hot water and a gritty soap. Follow this with a dash of cold water.

If pus forms, the pustules should be opened, preferably by a physician, because he will take great care as to cleanliness. Never violently squeeze a pimple, or serious results may follow.

In severe cases of acne successful results have been obtained by the injection of a special vaccine. Mixed vaccines, which contain both the acne germ and the staphylococcus germ, are extremely beneficial in some cases. Often the action of the vaccine is slow and improvement results only after prolonged treatment. In other cases ultra-violet light has been used and in very stubborn cases X-ray treatment has been found successful.

Proper diet is important in treating acne. Avoid starchy and sweet foods like candy, cake, pies, jellies, ice-cream, pastries, puddings, jam, sugar, sweet desserts and cereals, nor are spices, condiments, coffee, tea, cocoa, alcoholic beverages, nuts, melons, berries or corn permitted in the diet. Drink plenty of water between meals, but not with meals.

Any tendency towards constipation must be corrected before there can be hope of a cure.

Answers to Health Queries

M. J. Q.—Early this Fall I noticed a red, round spot on my neck. It kept getting larger until a month ago it was as large as a half dollar. Identical spots have come out on my body. Can you tell me what you think this disease is?

A.—Possibly you are suffering from psoriasis. You should see your doctor.

Ted T. O. Q.—What do you advise for pimples?

A.—Correct the diet, by cutting down on sugar, starches and coffee. Eat simple food. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

"MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

Copyright, 1931, by Goytici-Fraide Inc., distributed by Rinehart Features Syndicate, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Following the receipt of a death threat, Lola Carewe, known as "The Night Club Lady," is mysteriously slain in her penthouse apartment at 3 a. m. New Year's. Dr. Hugh Baldwin reports death due to heart failure. The only clue to the murderer is a medical laboratory specimen box found outside Lola's window. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt attaches importance to the young man whose photograph is found in Lola's room, and whose identity Lola had refused to reveal beyond his first name, "Basil." At the mention of "Basil," Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, becomes hysterical. It is known that Lola quarreled with Guy Everett and Vincent Rowland, a lawyer, over investments. Eunice, the maid, confesses she was employed by Everett to report the goings on in the apartment. The mystery deepens with the finding of the body of Christine Quires, Lola's guest. Christine had been killed before Lola and her body hidden until an opportune moment arrived for the murdered to place it, soaking wet, in Lola's room. The findings are similar to those in Lola's case except that Christine's neck was bruised after death. Everett, Christine's last escort, claims he left her at the apartment elevator at midnight New Year's Eve, and then went for a ride on the Motor Parkway, alone, arriving home after 3 a. m. Mrs. Carewe informs Colt that Christine lived with a brother, Edward, in Rochester.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

"Had Christine any private income?"

"Oh, yes, she was rather wealthy in her own right—that is to say, I believe she will be—I mean she would have been in two more months."

"She was coming into an inheritance?"

"Yes—of about a million dollars, I believe. There was something about her father having left her money of which she was to come in full possession when she was twenty-three years old."

Now Colt's line of questions swerved sharply.

"Do you know of any love affairs?"

"None."

"She had admirers—"

"Yes. But I think she took none of them seriously—that is what she always told me."

"Was this because of a disappointment in love?"

"I know nothing about that. She did not confide in me."

"Now, Mrs. Carewe," resumed Colt, "I want to ask you if you know of any person who would have any reason to wish for the death of Lola or of Christine—or who would benefit from their deaths in any way?"

"Absolutely none," declared old Mrs. Carewe.

"Who will get Lola's inheritance now?"

The mother shook her head unhappily and supposed she would, but she did not know. And she knew nothing of Christine's affairs.

"Did you ever know Christine to quarrel with anyone?"

The old woman gave Colt a quick, uncertain glance; then her eyelids covered a tell-tale expression and her fingers twitched at her handkerchief.

"No—not really," she sighed at last.

"Are you sure?"

"Yes."

"As a matter of fact, didn't she quarrel with you only this afternoon?"

The old lady's eyes opened brightly and she nodded her head vigorously.

"Oh—that! I suppose Eunice heard. Well—we did have a tiff. But it amounted to nothing. Christine thought Lola was investing some money in a wrong way. But I didn't know anything about it. Come to think of it, Christine made a remark that seems queer—now!—told her not to worry me about her money; she would have to see Lola about it. And she said something about she would—if Lola lived that long."

"Was that all?"

"Yes. She got to crying and went in her room and shut the door. After a while she came out and apologized and we kissed and made it up."

"Know of any other quarrels that might lead us anywhere?"

"Not a quarrel—I know something, but well—it is so trifling—"

"What is it?" insisted Dougherty.

"You must tell us everything."

"All right—it is true that Christine took a violent dislike to our butler. But Chung is a harmless person—he has been with us for years."

"Why did Christine dislike your Chinaman?"

"He frightened her. She thought he was—impertinent in the way he watched her."

"She was afraid of him?"

"Yes, frankly—she was. But that was foolishness."

Colt brushed aside her comments. "Now there remains what to me seems a difficult point," resumed Colt. "Lola was found wearing a flannel bath-robe. Do you know if it was hers?"

"Yes—she always liked it."

"Did she wear it often?"

"Whenever she felt chilly."

Colt nodded thoughtfully, but he asked no more questions. Promising Mrs. Carewe that she would be under constant guard, he bade her a comforting goodnight. When we reached the living-room, Colt and Doctor Multooler conferred in low tones. Then the Medical Examiner went the way of his two cadavers—out of the pent-house and down to the Morgue.

"Chief," said Inspector Flynn, from the open door of the guest-room where Lola had died. "Adams and Thompson are here—with their apparatus."

With some amusement, I observed District Attorney Dougherty's glare at this newest development—two young detectives from Headquarters, each armed with, of all things in the world, a vacuum cleaner.

They were here at Thatcher Colt's special request—operators of machines of vast importance to the police, although the public has little suspicion of how valuable such an instrument can be in solving a murder.

"Get everything ready!" ordered Colt crisply. "I am convinced that you boys can help us find what we need to get at the bottom of this baffling business."

Flushed at Colt's compliment, the two detectives began to make ready their machines. Meanwhile Colt went to the telephone and asked for long distance. In an incredibly short while, he was speaking to Captain Wagner, head of the Rochester Detective Department.

"Hello, Captain. I need your help in a hurry. I want to find a man named Edward Quires. He lives on Onondaga Avenue—"

At the other end of the wire, Captain Wagner had already reached for the telephone book, and as Colt finished, he had his finger on the listing.

"Right, Mr. Colt. I have the address before me."

"Will you send a man right out there? Ask Quires and his wife, if she's there, to go to Headquarters with you. Then to call this number from your office—Plaza 3-73635—that's right, and then will you keep an eye on Quires while I break a piece of news to him over the phone. See how he acts. Thanks, Captain!"

In preparing this watch-trap over Christine's brother in Rochester, Colt was simply following the old department maxim of taking nothing for granted and everything for possible. He knew that Christine Quires had been unhappy in her brother's home. More, he knew that she was the heiress to a fortune, which probably passed to her brother when she died. Her brother's reaction to Christine's death might show something.

It's as though the tobaccos were "welded" together...

"CROSS-BLENDING" means much more than just mixing tobaccos together.

It "welds" together different kinds of the several varieties of tobacco... many types of Bright tobacco, a great many types of Burley tobacco and numerous grades of Turkish tobacco.

THIS "WELDING" TOGETHER—or Cross-Blending—permits every kind of tobacco used in the Chesterfield blend to partake of the best qualities of every other type. Each tobacco is thus made to yield its finest flavors.

CROSS-BLENDING takes all these pleasing flavors and aromas and combines them into one—the Chesterfield taste. And we think you will agree that it is a far better taste... worth all the extra care that Chesterfield takes to get it.

EVERYTHING that money can buy and that science knows about is done to make CHESTERFIELD milder and taste better.

MARKET RALLY
IS SHORT-LIVEDFurther Selling Halts Upward Trend Following
Senate Action

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 1.—After a sharp rally at the opening, inspired by the senate's passage of the tax bill, stocks ran into further selling today.

Early gains of $1 to $5 were generally lost, while a few leaders established new low prices. The reaction was attributed by brokers to hang-over liquidation, to a substantial degree from loan accounts which had been impaired by recent demoralization of security prices. A good portion of selling, brokers said, came from out-of-town.

Utility stocks were particularly weak when the market turned downward. Peoples gas turned a rise of $3 into a loss of similar extent, while American Telephone, which had rallied $3 to $91, sagged about $2 net to a new low. Consolidated Gas of New York more than lost a gain of $2.75.

American Tobacco "B", after rising $4 to $50.75, sold $2 under the previous close. American Can gave up most of a $5.37 advance and U. S. Steel surrendered the $2.25 gain it had established an early price of $28. Santa Fe Railroad, after climbing $5 to $28.50 settled back to around Tuesday's final price.

her monument close to that of her husband. In that Italy sets a fine example.

When a man is honored, his wife should be honored as well. And no man should have a monument without the name of his mother upon it, and the statement that the monument is erected in honor of her son.

AMERICANS will hear with regret of the serious illness of Cyrus H. K. Curtis, now in a Philadelphia hospital. The sudden death from heart disease of Mrs. Curtis, who had gone to the hospital to be with her husband, must necessarily aggravate Mr. Curtis' condition.

Only a week ago yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Curtis were entertaining friends on board their yacht in New York harbor, both in excellent health.

Emerson called life "a bubble and a scepticism, and a sleep within a sleep."

ONE HUNDRED years ago, died Georges Leopold Chretien Frederic Desobert Cuvier.

The French naturalist had a brain worthy of his big name. His brain, weighed after death, was almost heavy enough for two ordinary men. The rows of books that he wrote.

Few scientists celebrate Cuvier's centenary; the world knows and cares little about it. But what Cuvier did, carrying on the work that Aristotle began, centuries before him, will be taught when our present interests shall have been forgotten.

POPE PIUS yesterday celebrated his 71st birthday in excellent health with a special mass of thanksgiving in his private chapel. His sister, Donna Camilla Ratti, a niece and a nephew, were among the few invited.

The pope's health remains excellent despite his confinement in the Vatican, thanks to a youth spent out of doors, with mountain climbing for his favorite exercise and diversion.

RENO, NEV., has decided to "clamp down the lid" on easy divorces, but bored husbands and wives need not worry. You can no longer file suit and get a divorce 20 minutes later. You must wait until next morning, out of respect for the court and also because business is rushing and clerks can hardly keep up with it.

Arriving Monday, you get your divorce Tuesday, and may be married again and on your honeymoon for luncheon that day.

Convalescing After Operation

This first picture to be made of Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain, since he recently underwent a serious eye operation, shows the British statesman leaving the nursing home at London with his daughter Ishbel. This was the second time that MacDonald had been under the knife for eye trouble. The Premier is convalescing at his home in Lossiemouth, Scotland, whence he recently held a mysterious telephone conversation with Washington, D. C.

PICTURE THIS Fully Automatic Kelvinator IN YOUR HOME

Kelvinator alone
has four different, constant temperatures—each automatically controlled.

There is keen satisfaction in the ownership of anything genuinely and inherently fine. This is so true of Kelvinator ownership. Because Kelvinator performs such an important service in such a creditable way.

Being fully automatic, it requires no attention or supervision. You simply cannot forget—and freeze the contents of the food compartment—because the temperature here is automatically controlled. So are the other three different temperatures. The below freezing temperature in the Frost Chest (for keeping fish, meats or game) is automatic. The World's Record Fast Freezing Speed is automatic. And so is the fast freezing temperature in the other ice cube trays.

Illustrated is the DeLuxe Model II—a beautiful cabinet that looks the part. And beneath this exterior beauty is a performance of such quality and of such long life that you dare not count the years. Many of those first Kelvinators, purchased eighteen years ago, are still in service. And the 1932 Kelvinator is finer, better, in every way, than this first, history-making Kelvinator. In the Deluxe and Standard Line—both of which are fully automatic—there are 9 different sized cabinets, one of which will meet your requirements as though it had been built especially for you—to your specifications.

At your convenience, see the 1932 Kelvinator. And the more closely you inspect it, the more convinced you will be that it is the electric refrigerator for you.

Six New School Records Created By 1932 Quaker Track Team

THE DAY IN SPORTS

MERRY MONTH OF MAY HIGHLIGHTS IN SPORTS

SEVERAL Big Ten athletes are destined to win berths on the American Olympic team on the basis of their performances in the 32d annual Western Conference track and field meet at Evanston last month.

All of the Big Ten individual champions are Olympic material but the keen competition, uncertainty of the long series of trials and other elements make it doubtful if more than five or six will eventually win places on the U. S. team.

Big Ten champions and their winning performances follow:
100-yard dash: Don Bennett, Ohio State, 29.5 (with wind).
220-yard dash: Bennett, 20.5 (with wind).
1-mile: Henry Brooksmith, Indiana, 4:21.1.
2-mile: Brooksmith, 9:37.9.
4.10-yard dash: Edwin Russell, Michigan, 49.4.
Half mile: Charles Hornbostel, Indiana, 1:56.
120-yard high hurdles: Jack Keller, Ohio State, 14 (with wind).
220-yard low hurdles: George Saling, Iowa, 23 (with wind).
Shot put: Clarence Munn, Minnesota, 49 ft., 5 1/2 inches.
Javelin throw: H. Robinson, Illinois, 190 ft., 3 1/2 ins.
Discus throw: Brooker Books, Michigan, 148 ft., 1 1/4 ins.
Hammer throw: Noble Biddinger, Indiana, 157 ft., 10 1/2 ins.
Broad jump: John Brooks, Chicago, 25 ft.
Pole vault: John Wonsowitz, Ohio State, 13 ft. 3 ins.
High jump: Ted Shaw, Wisconsin, 6 ft., 3 ins.

TWO WORLD'S records were bettered and two equalled in the Big Ten meet, but in each case the winner was aided by the wind at his back and had no chance for his mark to be recognized.

Keller's time of 14 seconds in the high hurdles is four-tenths of a second faster than the recognized world's record, and two-tenths of a second faster than Percy Beard's, American mark made indoors last winter.

Bennett's time of 20.5 seconds in the 220-yard dash is one-tenth of a second faster than the world's record made by Roland Locke, Nebraska. Bennett's time of 9.5 seconds in the hundred equals the accepted world's record, but Frank Wyckoff of Southern California, has a mark of 9.4 seconds which probably will be accepted as official the next time the international body meets to approve records. Saling's time of 23 seconds in the low hurdles also tied the world's record.

LOOKING BACK through the sports calendar and picking out some of the high spots of the merry month of May:

May 1—Boston Braves oust Chicago Cubs from National League lead, and Washington displaces New York Yankees at top of American League.

May 2—Top Flight, unbeaten Kentucky Derby, scratched from Kentucky Derby after defeat in Wood Memorial, two days previously.

May 6—Salem wins N. E. O. Big Ten league title.

May 10—Lon Warneke, Cubs' rookie pitcher, wins fifth straight game. National Hockey League reduces salary limit to $70,000 per club and $7,500 per player for next season.

May 12—American Association reduces blancher seats to 25 cents.

May 13—Ernie Schaff defeats Jack Gross in a 10-round bout, New York.

May 14—Salem wins county meet.

Salem Athletes Figure In Creation of Other Marks in Four Meets

Six new track and field records were written into the athletic history of Salem High by the school's athletes during the 1932 season. Quaker performers figured in the creation of many new marks in numerous meets throughout the district. It was another of the successful seasons that has established the athletic prestige of the school at great heights in Ohio competition.

Four championship titles were won by the school's athletes.

New Records

The record-breaking feats were turned in by Salem stars in the night relay carnival, county, district and Big Ten meets.

The new school marks were set up in the shot put, broad jump, low hurdles, two and four mile relays and mile run. Those responsible for the records are Wayne Russell in the shot put, broad jump—William Pauline, low hurdles—Bruce Arnold, two-mile relay—Irwin Beck, Murray Cooper, Edgar Wilms and Keith Harris; four-mile relay—Bruce Shasteen, Stanley Kamasky, Edgar Wilms and I. Beck; mile run—Harold Horstman.

There were a total of 38 new marks established in five meets involving Salem High. They were the:

Making a Damp Landing

Peyton Talbot, former Missouri Conference hurdle champion, is shown as he made the first test of the newly-installed water jump of the Olympic 3,000-meter steeplechase course, at the Olympic Stadium, Los Angeles. This jump is a real hazard for the Olympians, the water on the far side of the hurdle being 12 feet wide, varying from 8 feet to 6 inches in depth. The water jump is the most spectacular obstacle of the classic event.

Aiding Olympic Hostesses

Miss Harriet Segall and Mrs. Ludovic Bremner are the pretty human standards for this set-up over which Frank O'Bryan is vaulting at the Los Angeles Olympic Stadium. Rosmary Weaver is the beautiful damsel seated at the bottom of the Olympiad banner. The stunt is a part of the program which society girls of the Olympic Hospitality Corps are rehearsing for the 1932 games.

CINCI SLABSTER AFTER RECORD; SOX BEAT TRIBE

Lucas Wins Seven Games In 10 Starts; Errors Defeat Indians

(By Associated Press.)

Red Lucas, star Cincinnati hurler, apparently is out to set a modern record for complete games pitched in a season.

Thus far, the popular red-head has started and finished ten contests, and has won seven of them. At that pace he stands an even chance of equalling or bettering the modern mark of 36 complete games set by Grover Cleveland Alexander back in 1915.

Two hurlers, Wes Ferrell of Cleveland and Bob Grove of the Athletics, turned in 27 full-time jobs last season. Cincinnati's "work horse" should have little difficulty passing that figure.

Bucs Trim Reds

That Dan Howley, red boss, is in sympathy with Lucas' ambition was demonstrated yesterday, when the Reds took a 4 to 1 beating from Pittsburgh and fell back into a tie with the Pirates for third place in the national league.

Lucas welded six hits and four runs in the first two innings, but stuck it out to allow only three hits the rest of the way.

The battle for top position in the national remained at a standstill as both Chicago and Boston won. The Cubs defeated St. Louis, 3 to 1, behind Lon Warneke's six-hit pitching, while Ed Brandt southpawed the Braves to a 7 to 2 triumph over the Giants.

A's Lose, 5-4

Brooklyn and the Phillies were not scheduled.

Lusty hitting by Heinie Manush in the extra innings enabled the Washington Senators to take a lot one from the Philadelphia Athletics, 5 to 4, in twelve rounds.

Manush slapped a home run in the eleventh and when that wasn't good enough to win, came right back with a triple in the twelfth that scored Buddy Myer with the clincher.

The day's only other contest, in the American resulted in a 6 to 5 victory for the embattled Chicago White Sox over Cleveland. Errors by Vosmik and Morgan helped the Sox score five times in the sixth inning.

Other Leading Hitters

Two other Ohio Edison players, Richard Konert and Bruce Cope are sixth and seventh, respectively. Others in the ranking of the league's ten leaders are George Reash and Mike Sartick, Salem Hardware, and W. Paxson, Cox Studios.

In addition to his claim on hitting honors, Kelley has accepted the greatest number of chances in the field, having 15 putouts and as many assists to his credit.

His 11 hits give him a big lead in this department while Everett Rich, the Legion's star base performer and speed artist, heads the loop in run scoring with seven.

FOUR WHITE SOX PLAYERS FINED IN FIST FIGHT

Moriarty reprimanded for Neglect of Duty; Gaston Suspended 10 Days

(By Associated Press.)

CLEVELAND, June 1—It will cost four members of the Chicago White Sox good money for their affair of fisticuffs with umpire George Moriarty and the veteran arbiter can nurse a severe reprimand, as well as his injuries.

President Will Harridge of the American league, after an investigation of Moriarty's battle with the Sox here Memorial day in which the umpire suffered a broken right fist and Pitcher Milton Gaston was knocked out, last night handed out penalties and censure all around.

Fonseca Fined $500

Manager Lew Fonseca of the Sox was fined $500, Pitcher Gaston was assessed a like sum and suspended 10 days, and Catchers Charley Berry and Frank Grube were penalized $250 and $100 respectively. Coach Johnny Butler was suspended for five days, for "use of profane language" toward Moriarty.

Moriarty, who broke his hand on Gaston's jaw and proclaimed himself ready to fight the whole Chicago team, was "severely reprimanded for neglect of duty," Harridge announced. The league president held that, according to Moriarty's own story, the umpire should have chased Fonseca and Berry from the game before the trouble started.

Fonseca heard the bad news calmly. "Harridge is the boss and anything he says goes," he said. Moriarty could not be reached.

The fight, an incident Harridge said has not been duplicated in the 21 years he has been in baseball, took place after Cleveland defeated Chicago in both games of a double-header. Berry and Moriarty were arguing when Gaston stepped in and took one on the chin, according to Cleveland players. Fonseca, Grube and Berry were then reported to have rushed Moriarty. Gaston, however, was the only one actually involved in the fisticuffs, Harridge found.

U. S. Army Balloon Entry Still Aloft

(By Associated Press)

OMAHA, NEBR., June 1.—Victory in the United States national balloon race and possibly a new national record remained literally in the air today as the United States army balloon No. 2, only bag still aloft of six that started from here Monday, was reported swinging toward central Alberta.

Dispatches from the Canadian province indicated last night the bag and its pilot, Lieut. W. J. Paul, had excellent prospects of getting as far north as Edmonton, approximately 200 air miles farther than the spot in Saskatchewan where the Goodyear VII came to earth yesterday.

Honor College Man

BEAVER, PA., June 1.—Dr. J. L. McCraigh, of Muskingum college, New Concord, O., was elected vice moderator of the United Presbyterian church of North America here yesterday.

PAT CONWAY AT KELLY'S PARK, EVERY WEDNESDAY.

AT THE STATE

Tom Manning, radio announcer, will appear on the State theater stage Saturday with Pie Plant Pete, radio entertainer.

THEATER Attractions

"HUDDLE", with Ramon Novarro in a role entirely different from the many he has played, concludes its run today at the State. Novarro is really fine in his characterization of Tony Amatto, the Italian mill hand in a small town who wins a scholarship to Yale university.

His efforts to adjust himself to a strange social environment by the right of brawn and athletic achievement are a stirring basis for the story. Madge Evans, Ena Merkel, Ralph Graves, John Arledge and Frank Albertson are in the supporting cast.

COMING ATTRACTIONS for Thursday and Friday brings to the State screen, "The Trial of Vivienne Ware."

Based on Kenneth M. Ellis' radio drama and widely read novel, it depicts the thrills of a murder trial and shows to what extent circumstantial evidence may be employed in convicting an innocent person. As Vivienne Ware, the society girl and heiress, Joan Bennett is tried for the murder of Damon Fenwick, the millionaire architect to whom she was affianced.

The circumstantial evidence is so convincing that conviction seems certain. But the girl's innocence is finally established after the district attorney has demanded her life and her own attorney advises her to plead guilty and accept a life sentence.

Donald Cook appears as counsel for the defense who is in love with the prisoner. Allan Dinehart is the prosecutor and Herbert Mundin, the star witness.
